GuestLogix Inc. ('GuestLogix' or the 'Company'), originally established as Verdian Group Technologies Co., is in the business of providing proprietary transaction-based on-board retail software solutions for the passenger travel industry. The GuestLogix on-board retail solution, called Mobile Virtual Store, manages all three major components of the on-board retail industry: pre-departure, on-board and post-arrival processing.

Reverse Takeover

On August 1, 2007 GuestLogix and its principal shareholders entered into a reverse takeover of Growthgen Equity II Inc. ('Growthgen') wherein all of the issued and outstanding shares of GuestLogix were sold, by way of share exchange, to Growthgen (the 'RTO'). Holders of issued and outstanding common shares of GuestLogix received 3.94 shares of Growthgen for each GuestLogix share held.

At the time of closing, GuestLogix had 7,242,109 shares outstanding which upon conversion into Growthgen shares resulted in a total of 28,533,910 shares being issued to previously existing GuestLogix shareholders. Immediately following the amalgamation, subscription receipts which were issued in relation to a GuestLogix financing under which gross proceeds of $9,000,040 were raised in May 2007 were automatically exercised and the holders thereof received an aggregate of 12,857,200 common shares. In addition, the outstanding principal amount outstanding of $729,067 under 12% convertible debentures issued by GuestLogix between August 17, 2006 and October 2, 2006 was converted into 1,235,911 common shares, and an additional 79,194 common shares were issued in satisfaction of fees owed by GuestLogix to a service provider, for a total of 42,706,215 common shares issued in the RTO.

Upon completion of the RTO, there were 43,372,882 common shares outstanding of Growthgen, which was renamed GuestLogix Inc.

The RTO has been accounted for in accordance with EIC-10 as a capital transaction resulting from the recapitalization of Growthgen. The consolidated balance sheet combines the assets and liabilities of Growthgen as an acquisition under the purchase method. The net assets acquired at fair value August 1, 2007 are as follows:

Asset
Cash	$100,046
Less: liabilities assumed	-
Total consideration attributable to Growthgen	$100,046
Represented by 1,666,667 Growthgen shares	$100,046

1. Significant accounting policies:

The interim financial statements have been prepared in accordance with Canadian generally accepted accounting principles. Certain information and note disclosures normally included in the annual financial statements prepared in accordance with Canadian generally accepted accounting principles have been condensed to include only the notes related to the elements which have significantly changed in the interim period. As a result, these interim financial statements should be read in conjunction with the Company's audited financial statements and notes thereto for the fiscal year ended November 30, 2006. The unaudited interim financial statements, in the opinion of management, contain all adjustments (consisting solely of normal recurring adjustments) necessary to present fairly the financial information for such unaudited interim periods. The accounting policies applied thereon are consistent with those described below and in the Company's audited financial statements for the fiscal year ended November 30, 2006, except as described in note 1(l)(i). The results of operations for the three months ended August 31, 2007 are not necessarily indicative of the results to be expected for the full year.

(a) Revenue recognition:

The Company recognizes revenue when persuasive evidence of an arrangement exists, delivery has occurred or services have been rendered, the sales price is fixed or determinable, and collectibility is reasonably assured.

When a customer order contains multiple items such as hardware, software, hosting and services, which are delivered at varying times, the Company determines whether the delivered items can be considered separate units of accounting in accordance with Emerging Issues Committee Abstract 142, Revenue Arrangements with Multiple Deliverables ('EIC 142'). EIC 142 states that delivered items should be considered separate units of accounting if delivered items have value to the customer on a standalone basis, there is objective and reliable evidence of the fair value of undelivered items, and if delivery of undelivered items is probable and substantially in the Company's control.

If the Company is able to establish fair value for all elements of the arrangement, revenue is allocated and recognized on each element separately in accordance with the appropriate revenue recognition convention for a given unit of accounting. However, if fair value cannot be established or if the delivered items do not have stand-alone value to the customer without additional services being provided, the Company recognizes revenue on the contract as a whole based on the proportional-performance method as described below.

A typical multiple-element arrangement includes Company software, transaction processing, third party product or services and maintenance services.

The Company sells hardware to certain customers under sales-type lease arrangements for terms typically ranging from two to four years. The Company accounts for its sales-type leases in accordance with the provisions of The Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants ('CICA') Handbook Section 3065, Leases, and recognizes current and long-term lease receivables, which represent the net present value of lease payments to be received, on the accompanying balance sheets as net finance receivable. The present value of all payments is recorded as sales and the related cost of the equipment is charged to cost of sales. The associated interest is recorded over the term of the lease using the effective interest method. Historically, due to the brief operating history of the Company, fair value of all undelivered elements, such as transaction processing and maintenance services revenue, has not been available. Therefore, the Company deferred recognition of the revenue and cost of sales related to sales-type lease arrangements and recognizes revenue and cost of sales on a monthly basis when undelivered elements existing at the agreements outset, such as transaction and monthly services, are delivered and payments are due.

The Company records product revenue from software licenses and products when persuasive evidence of an arrangement exists, the software product has been delivered, there are no significant uncertainties surrounding product acceptance, the fees are fixed and determinable and collection is considered probable. The Company uses the residual method to recognize revenue on delivered elements when a license agreement includes one or more elements to be delivered at a future date if evidence of the fair value of all undelivered elements exists.

If an undelivered element for the arrangement exists under the license arrangement, revenue related to the undelivered element is deferred based on the fair value of the undelivered element. Software licenses normally include the associated post contract customer support ('PCS') and are sold together. The Company has established fair value of the undelivered PCS element based on the contracted price for renewal PCS included in the original multiple element sales arrangement, as substantiated by contractual terms.

The Company also enters into contracts that are primarily fixed fee arrangements to render specific consulting services. For those fixed fee contracts where the services are not essential to the functionality of a software element or are sold separately, the proportional performance method is applied to recognize revenue. Revenues from training and integration services are recognized in the period in which these services are performed.

(b) Research and development expenses:

Research costs are expensed as incurred. Costs related to the design and development of software solutions are expensed as incurred unless they meet the criteria, under Canadian generally accepted accounting principles, for deferral and depreciation. No development costs have been deferred to date. Research and development costs are recorded net of investment tax credits, where applicable.

(c) Investment tax credits:

The Company is entitled to federal and provincial investment tax credits, which are earned as a percentage of eligible research and development expenditures incurred in each taxation year. The Company records the benefit of investment tax credits when the qualifying expenditures have been incurred and there is reasonable assurance as to their collectibility.

Investment tax credits are recorded as a reduction of the related expenditure for items of a current nature and a reduction of the related capital asset for items of a long-term nature.

1. Significant accounting policies (continued):

(d) Property and equipment:

Property and equipment are recorded at cost. Depreciation is provided on a straight-line basis over their estimated useful lives as follows:

Office furniture and fixtures	5 years
Computer equipment	3 years

(e) Impairment of long-lived assets:

The useful lives and the carrying values of long-lived assets are periodically reviewed for continued appropriateness. Impairment of long-lived assets is reviewed whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying value of the assets may not be recoverable. If the sum of the undiscounted future cash flows expected to result from the use and eventual disposition of an asset is less than its carrying value, it is considered to be impaired. An impairment loss is measured as the excess of the carrying value of the asset over its fair value.

(f) Foreign currency translation:

Monetary assets and liabilities of the Company that are denominated in foreign currencies are translated into Canadian dollars at the exchange rates prevailing at the balance sheet date. Revenues and expenses are translated at the exchange rates prevailing at the dates of the transactions. Foreign exchange gains and losses are included in the statement of operations and deficit.

1. Significant accounting policies (continued):

(g) Income taxes:

The Company provides for income taxes under the asset and liability method. Under the asset and liability method, future income tax assets and liabilities are recognized for the future tax consequences attributable to differences between the financial statement carrying amount of existing assets and liabilities and their respective tax bases. Future tax assets and liabilities are measured using enacted or substantively enacted tax rates expected to apply to taxable income in the years in which those temporary differences are expected to be recovered or settled. Future income tax assets, if any, are recognized only to the extent that, in the opinion of management, it is more likely than not that the assets will be realized.

(h) Stock-based compensation:

Effective December 1, 2005, the Company adopted the recommendations of CICA Handbook Section 3870, Stock-based Compensation and Other Stock-based Payments, which resulted in the fair value method of accounting being used for stock-based payments to employees and non-employees. The Company grants stock options to directors, officers, employees and consultants of the Company pursuant to the stock option plan described in note 11(d). Compensation expense is recognized for stock options based on the fair value of the options at the grant date using the Black-Scholes option-pricing model. The Company accounts for actual forfeitures in the year they occur. The fair value of the options is recognized over the vesting period of the options as general and administrative, research and development or sales and marketing expense, with the corresponding amount included in equity as contributed surplus. If the stock options are exercised, the proceeds received are credited to common shares.

(i) Deferred revenue:

Deferred revenue is comprised of lease revenues on the Company's sales-type leases. This revenue is brought into income over the initial term of the contract. Deferred revenue also arises where significant obligations have yet to be satisfied and where payments have been received from the customers in advance of the performance of services.

1. Significant accounting policies (continued):

(j) Loss per share:

Basic loss per share is calculated based on the weighted average number of common shares outstanding. Diluted loss per common share is calculated using the weighted average number of common shares and potential common shares outstanding during the reporting period. Potential common shares consist of the incremental number of common shares issuable upon the exercise of stock options, warrants and conversion of financial instruments and are computed using the treasury stock method. As a result of losses in all reporting periods, all potentially dilutive securities outstanding are anti-dilutive.

(k) Use of estimates:

The preparation of financial statements requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenue and expense during the year. In particular, significant estimates, judgments and assumptions include those related to revenue recognition, allowance for doubtful accounts, realization of investment tax credits, the valuation of conversion features and option in debt instruments, the valuation of warrants, income taxes and determination of stock-based compensation. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

(l) Recently adopted pronouncements

(i) Financial instruments:

On December 1, 2006, the Company adopted CICA Handbook Sections 1530, Comprehensive Income ('Section 1530'), Section 3251, Equity ('Section 3251'), Section 3855, Financial Instruments - Recognition and Measurement ('Section 3855'), Section 3861, Financial Instruments - Disclosure and Presentation ('Section 3861') and Section 3865, Hedges ('Section 3865').

1. Significant accounting policies (continued):

Section 1530 established standards for reporting and presenting comprehensive income, which is the change in equity from transactions and other events from non-owner sources. Other comprehensive income refers to items recognized in comprehensive income that are excluded from net income calculated in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

Section 3861 establishes standards for presentation of financial instruments and non-financial derivatives, and specifies the information that should be disclosed about them. Section 3865 describes when and how hedge accounting can be applied as well as the disclosure requirements. Hedge accounting enables the recording of gains, losses, revenues and expenses from derivative financial instruments in the same periods as those related to the hedged items.

Under Section 3855, financial instruments must be classified into one of these five categories: held-for-trading, held to-maturity, loans and receivables, available-for-sale financial assets and other financial liabilities. All derivative instruments, including those that are embedded in, but not closely related to, another contract must be classified as held for trading. All financial instruments, including derivatives, are measured at fair value except for loans and receivables, held-to-maturity investments and other financial liabilities which are measured at amortized cost. Subsequent measurement and changes in fair value will depend on their initial classification, as follows: held-for-trading financial assets are measured at fair value and changes in fair value are recognized in net earnings; available-for-sale financial instruments are measured at fair value with changes in fair value recorded in other comprehensive income until the investment is derecognized or impaired at which time the amounts would be recorded in net earnings.

Under the adoption of these new standards, the Company designated restricted cash as held-for-trading, which is measured at fair value. Accounts receivable and net finance receivable are classified as loans and receivables, which are measured at amortized cost. Accounts payable and accrued liabilities, obligations under capital lease, note payable, convertible loans from shareholders, and convertible debentures are classified as other financial liabilities, which are measured at amortized cost.

1. Significant accounting policies (continued):

The adoption of these standards resulted in the decrease of $507,814 in the fair value of various convertible debt instruments on December 1, 2006 and a corresponding decrease in the deficit of the Company. This decrease in the fair value of the convertible debt will result in increased accretion charges in future periods (including $355,627 and $1,542,328 for the three and nine month periods ended August 31, 2007) so that the fair value of the debt equals the face value of the debt at maturity.

(ii) Non-monetary transactions:

Effective January 1, 2006, the Company adopted CICA Handbook Section 3831, Non-monetary Transactions. This standard requires all non-monetary transactions to be measured at fair value unless they meet one of four very specific criteria. Commercial substance replaces culmination of the earnings process as the test for fair value measurement. A transaction has commercial substance if it causes an identifiable and measurable change in the economic circumstances of the entity. Commercial substance is a function of the cash flows expected by the reporting entity. The adoption of this standard did not have a material impact on the Company's financial position and results of operations.

(iii) Cash Flow Statements:

In March 2007, the CICA amended Handbook Section 1540 "Cash Flow Statements" ("Section 1540"). Paragraph 1540.55 requires prospective application was amended such that cash distributions on financial instruments classified as equity that are determined in accordance with a contractual agreement or relevant constating document, now require disclosure of the extent to which cash distributions are non-discretionary. The Company has adopted this amended standard, which did not have a material effect on the presentation of its consolidated results of operations.

(i) Recently adopted pronouncements (continued):

(iv) General Standards of Financial Statement Presentation:

In June 2007, the CICA added paragraphs to Handbook Section 1400 "General Standards of Financial Statement Presentation" ("Section 1400") to include new requirements regarding an entity's ability to continue as a going concern. The additions to Section 1400 apply to interim and annual financial statements relating to fiscal year beginning on or after January 1, 2008. Earlier adoption is encouraged. The Company has adopted the revisions to this standard, which did not have a material effect on the presentation of its consolidated results of operations or financial position.

(v) Inventories:

In June 2007, the CICA issued Handbook Section 3031 "Inventories" ("Section 3031"). This section supersedes CICA Handbook Section 3030 "Inventories," and is based on International Financial Reporting Standard IAS 2, "Inventories." The Section prescribes the accounting treatment for inventories and applies to interim and annual financial statements relating to fiscal years beginning on or after January 1, 2008. Earlier adoption is encouraged. The Company is currently evaluating the impact of this standard on its financial position, results of operations and cash flows. The Company does not anticipate that the application of Section 3031 will have a material impact on its financial statements.

2. Investment tax credits:

As a Canadian Controlled Private Corporation, certain investment tax credits were refundable to the Company, while others are non-refundable but can be applied against future income tax liabilities and are subject to a carry forward period. The Company is entitled to federal and provincial investment tax credits, which are earned as a percentage of eligible research and development expenditures incurred in each taxation year. The Company records the benefit of investment tax credits when the qualifying expenditures have been incurred and there is reasonable assurance as to their collectibility.

Investment tax credits are recorded as a reduction of the related expenditure for items of a current nature and a reduction of the related capital asset for items of a long-term nature. The claims are subject to review by the Canada Revenue Agency ('CRA').

2. Investment tax credits (continued):

At November 30, 2006, the Company has a balance of $160,000 (2005 - $330,000) of investment tax credits receivables, which has been recorded as a reduction of research and development expenses related to projects commenced in the preceding year. Upon adoption of Section 3855, the Company has designated these amounts as held-for-trading, which requires the investments be marked to market and the changes in fair value be recorded in the statements of operations. These convertible shareholder loans are unsecured and bear interest at 14% per annum payable quarterly in arrears. The convertible shareholder loans were repayable in June 2007, at which time the holders agreed to extend the maturity on these loans to June 30, 2008. The loans are convertible at the option of the holder at anytime until their maturity dates such that the holders would receive one common share for each $0.199 of principal amount converted. In the event the full amount of the debentures is converted, the Company would issue 4,787,188 common shares. In addition, the holders of these loans received 11,249,047 warrants with the holders having the right to purchase one common share for each four warrants held at a price of $0.20 per common share. These warrants have an expiry date of April 30, 2008.

These convertible shareholder loans contain both a liability and an equity element, being share purchase warrants and a conversion option, and therefore, under Canadian generally accepted accounting principles, these two elements are split and classified separately as debt and equity. In addition, as noted above, the debt holders received purchase warrants on the issuance of the convertible loans.

6. Loans from shareholders (continued):

The Company allocated the total proceeds received from the issuance of the convertible loans based on the relative fair values of these three components. The allocation based on relative fair values of the three components resulted in the allocation at loan inception of $177,427 to the debt instrument, $480,943 to the conversion option, and $293,923 to the purchase warrants. Upon extension of these loans to June 30, 2008, the Company revalued the loans and allocated a further $699,676 to the conversion option, resulting in a corresponding decrease in the fair value of the loans.

Each reporting period, the Company is required to accrete the carrying value of the convertible loans such that at maturity the carrying value of the convertible loans will equal the face value of the convertible loans of $952,293. For the three and nine months ended August 31, 2007, the Company incurred accretion expense relating to its shareholder convertible loans of $290,024 and $996,195 respectively (2006 - $98,546 and $117,932).

(b) Shareholder loan:

As at August 31, 2007, the balance of a loan of $61,383 (2006 - $61,383) from a shareholder is non-interest bearing, is unsecured and has no fixed term of repayment. Upon adoption of Section 3855, the amount has been measured at amortized cost, which approximates its face value.

(c) Shareholder notes payable:

On June 20, 2006, $455,990 (U.S. $400,000) of unsecured loans were issued bearing interest at 10% per annum, payable quarterly in arrears, due December 31, 2006. In addition, the holders of these loans received 2.45 warrants for each U.S. dollar invested with the holder having the right to purchase one common share for each warrant held at a price of U.S. $0.32. In total, 980,468 warrants were issued which are exercisable into 980,468 common shares, having an expiry date of June 30, 2009.

These loans contain both a liability and an equity element, represented by the warrants, and therefore, under GAAP these two elements are split and classified separately as debt and equity. The Company allocated the total proceeds received from the issuance of the convertible loan to these two elements based on their relative fair values. The fair value of the purchase warrants were determined based on an option-pricing model. The fair value of the debt has been based on the discounted cash flows using an estimated cost of borrowing of 22% to represent an estimate of what the Company may borrow secured debt at without a purchase warrant. The resulting allocation based on relative fair values resulted in the allocation of $208,184 to the debt instrument and $237,806 to the purchase warrants.

Each reporting period, the Company accretes the carrying value of the debt instruments such that at maturity the carrying value of the debt instruments will equal the face value of the debt.

On October 16, 2006, the Company entered into an agreement with the holders of these loans under which they agreed to convert $470,746 (U.S. $413,041) of principal and accrued interest for 705,406 common shares. The Company has recorded the conversion of this value of the principal and interest to equity as of October 16, 2006, however, the shares were not issued until June 2007 and are shown under Shares to be issued on the balance sheet until that time.

For the three and nine months ended August 31, 2007, the Company incurred accretion expense relating to these loans of $nil and $nil respectively (2006 - $88,258 and $88,258).

7. Notes payable (continued):

- (a) As at November 30, 2006, $340,290 (U.S. $300,000) of a note payable remained outstanding, less the unamortized amount of accreted interest at 14% per annum of $14,651 (U.S. $12,916). The sellers had been unable to agree amongst themselves as to the allocation of funds payable on the note payable and the Company had been asked to defer further payments until the matter is resolved between the former shareholders.

In addition, contingent consideration of up to U.S. $200,000 is payable subject to the Company achieving certain conditions at August 12, 2008, or at anytime prior to that date if triggered by a liquidation event as defined in the agreement. Management determined that as at August 31, 2007, it was feasible that the conditions may be met, and as a result, additional contingent consideration of $105,900 (U.S. $100,000) has been recorded. On August 12, 2007 the Company achieved a milestone whereby an additional $105,620 (U.S. $100,000) which was previously recorded as a liability became due and payable. The principal outstanding at August 31, 2007 was $417,816 (U.S. $400,000).

- (b) During October 2006, the Company borrowed $505,369 (U.S. $445,181) from a supplier. The amount was repayable in seven equal monthly instalments through August 2007 and is non-interest bearing to November 2006 after which time, the note bears interest at 10% per annum. Upon adoption of Section 3855, the amount has been measured at amortized cost, which approximates its face value.

During the period from August 17, 2006 to October 2, 2006, the Company received advances by way of convertible debentures totalling $729,067 (U.S. $653,626). The maturities on the various debentures fall between February 17, 2007 and March 27, 2007, however, these loan amounts were not repaid. In June 2007, the Company received confirmation from the convertible debt holders that they are converting U.S. $699,512 of principal and interest to common shares in the Company and the Company issued 1,235,911 common shares on August 1, 2007 to satisfy this obligation.

In addition, the holders of these loans received an additional 186,567 warrants for converting their loans, with each warrant having an exercise price of U.S. $0.726. In total, since the inception of these loans, warrants were issued which are exercisable into 1,267,527 common shares, with expiry dates ranging from August 16, 2011 to October 1, 2011 and exercise prices ranging from U.S. $0.726 to U.S. $0.907.

In the event the trading price of GuestLogix common shares exceeds 150% of the exercise price of U.S. $0.726, and 180% of the exercise price of U.S. $0.907 of the exercise price for 20 consecutive days respectively, the Company can force the exercise of the warrants.

These convertible debentures contained both a liability and an equity element, being share purchase warrants and conversion options. The Company allocated the total proceeds received from the issuance of the convertible debenture to these three elements based on their relative fair values. The resulting allocation based on the relative fair values resulted in the allocation of $393,085 to the debt instrument, $190,725 to the conversion option, and $145,257 to the purchase warrants.

14. Financial instruments:

The carrying values of cash, accounts receivable, restricted cash and accounts payable and accrued liabilities approximate their fair values due to the relatively short period to maturity of these financial instruments

The carrying amount of the August 2005 note payable (note 7(a)) approximates its fair value because the interest used to discount the note equates to a rate which is the Company's borrowing rate for a similar liability.

The fair value of all other long-term financial assets and liabilities approximate their carrying value at November 30, 2006 and August 31, 2007. Fair value estimates are made at a specific point in time based on relevant market information. These estimates are subjective in nature and involve uncertainties and matters of significant judgment and therefore cannot be determined with precision. Changes in assumptions could significantly affect estimates.

14. Financial instruments (continued):

The Company is subject to interest risks, credit risks arising from these financial instruments and currency risk in the normal course of business. The Company has a major customer that is located in the United States and payments and revenue under arrangements with this customer are in United States dollars. The Company makes additional sales and purchase transactions in foreign currencies, and therefore it is subject to gains or losses due to fluctuations in foreign currencies. The Company does not use derivative financial instruments to minimize its exposure to foreign currency risks.

15. Guarantees:

In the normal course of business, the Company enters into agreements that meet the definition of a guarantee.

- (a) The Company indemnifies its directors and officers against any and all claims or losses reasonably incurred in the performance of their service to the Company to the extent permitted by law. The Company has acquired and maintains liability insurance for its directors and officers.
- (b) In the normal course of business, the Company has entered into agreements that include indemnities in favour of third parties, such as purchase and sale agreements, confidentiality agreements, engagement letters with advisors and consultants, outsourcing agreements, leasing contracts, information technology agreements and service agreements. These indemnification agreements August require the Company to compensate counterparties for losses incurred by the counterparties as a result of breaches in representation and regulations or as a result of litigation claims or statutory sanctions that August be suffered by the counterparty as a consequence of the transaction. The terms of these indemnities are not explicitly defined and the maximum amount of any potential reimbursement cannot be reasonably estimated. The nature of these indemnification agreements prevents the Company from making a reasonable estimate of the maximum exposure due to the difficulties in assessing the amount of liability, which stems from the unpredictability of future events and the unlimited coverage offered to counterparties. Historically, the Company has not made any payments under such or similar indemnification agreements and therefore no amount has been recorded in the balance sheet with respect to these agreements.
